NEW QUESTION: 1

Why Is the Man Screaming?

Edvard Munch's 1893 painting "The Scream" is a powerful work of art that has true aesthetic value. In its raw depiction of the unavoidable human emotions of alienation, anxiety and fear, "The Scream" invites meaningful introspection as the viewer internalizes its message of the vulnerability of the human psyche.

"The Scream" is a very dynamic and yet frightening painting. The blood-red sky and eerie water/air seem to be moving and twirling, even enveloping the screaming man's mind as he stands on a bridge completely disregarded by passers-by who do not share in his horror. Viewers of the painting cannot help but ask:

Why is the man screaming? And why is he alone in his scream? What is he afraid of? Or, what has he realized or seen that is making him scream?

Why aren't the others as affected as he? The threat must be internal, yet the brushstrokes, colors and perspective seem to indicate that the horror is also bound to something in nature, something outside of the man. In any case, the agony and alienation are inescapable. Something horrible has happened or been realized by the man who cannot contain his horror, but has not affected the others on the bridge.

That the people in the background are calm and do not share this horror conveys a truth regarding the ownership of our own feelings. We are often alone in our feelings, as can be especially noticed when we are in pain. The horror is the man's own; he must carry it himself. In this expressionist piece, the black, red, and orange colors are both bold and dark, illuminating and haunting at the same time. Remarkably, the light from the blood-reds and vibrant oranges in the distant sky seem to be somewhat detached from the figure in the forefront, failing to reach his persona, suggesting that there is little to illuminate his (and the viewer's) fears. The man's face is nondescript; in fact, it almost looks more like a skull than a living man's face, hollow with two simple dots to indicate the nostrils, no hair, no wrinkles of the skin. This could be any man or woman, left to deal with his or her own horrors.

According to the author, what might be making the man scream?

A. None of the above; we have no idea what is making him scream.

B. He has realized something horrible about himself.

C. He has seen something horrible.

D. all of the above

E. He has realized that he is alone.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

The author speculates that "Something horrible has happened or been realized by the man" (lines 23-25) and asks, "what has he realized or seen that is making him scream?" (lines 16-17). He may have seen something horrible (choice a). The realization could be something about himself (choice b), including his isolation from others (choice c). Thus, choice e is an incorrect answer.
