NEW QUESTION: 1

Packets traverse a Junos device configured for class of service.

Which two statements are true in this scenario? (Choose two.)

- A. Packets are subject to traffic shapers before policers.
- B. Packets are processed by multifield classifier before behavior aggregate classifiers.
- C. Packets are processed by behavior aggregate classifiers before multifield classifiers.
- D. Packets are subject to policers before traffic shapers.

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

A: Traffic shaping and policing can work in tandem. For example, a good traffic shaping scheme should make it easy for nodes inside the network to detect misbehaving flows. This activity is sometimes called policing the traffic of the flow.
C: The simplest way to classify a packet is to use behavior aggregate (BA) classification.

For a specified interface, you can configure both a multifield classifier and a BA classifier without conflicts. Because the classifiers are always applied in sequential order, the BA classifier followed by the multifield classifier, any BA classification result is overridden by a multifield classifier if they conflict.
