NEW QUESTION: 1

A business analyst is in the process of completing the requirements document for a project. She has made the following 'to-do' list of actions to help keep track of her work:

1. Need to amend the description of the scope of the project.
2. Need to record the terminology used throughout the document.
3. Need to add the use cases and the as-is business process diagrams.

When she completes all of these actions, which requirements document sections will not have been updated?

- A. Data models and introduction and background
- B. Requirements catalogue and data model
- C. Requirements catalogue and glossary of terms
- D. Function models and requirements catalogue

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 2

You have a Linux server running on a custom network. There's an allow firewall rule with an IP filter of 0.0.0.0/0 with a protocol/port of tcp:22. The logs on the instance show a constant stream of attempts from different IP addresses, trying to connect via SSH. You suspect this is a brute force attack. How might you change the firewall rule to stop this from happening and still enable access for legit users?

- A. Change the IP address range in the filter to only allow known IP addresses.
- B. Change the port that SSH is running on in the instance and change the port number in the firewall rule.
- C. Deny all traffic to port 22.
- D. Stop the instance.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3

A system administrator ran the backupConfig command to backup the configuration using the -nostop option. The administrator changed the properties for the service integration environment by modifying the sib.properties file. During testing the administrator noticed Service Integration Bus related errors and wanted to restore the service integration environment. The administrator used the restoreConfig command, but the tuning properties for the service integration environment were not restored.

How can the administrator prevent this issue?

- A. Use the manageprofiles command for both the backup and the restore.
- B. Use the backupConfig command without -nostop for the backup Use the restoreConfig command without -nostop for the restore.
- C. Use full repository checkpoint for both the backup and the restore.
- D. Use the restoreConfig command with -nostop for the restore.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation:

With the repository checkpoint and restore function, you can back up copies of files from the master configuration repository. You can use the backups to restore the configuration to a previous state if future configuration changes cause operational problems. By using this function, you can reduce recovery time for problems that are caused by configuration changes. Studies of unplanned outages have shown that as much as 36 percent of unplanned outages are due to operator errors. A common source of operator error is a bad configuration change. The ability to quickly undo a bad configuration change is critical to minimizing the outage window.
