A LAN administrator normally would be restricted from:

- A. being responsible for LAN security administration.
- B. having programming responsibilities.
- C. reporting to the end-user manager.
- D. having end-user responsibilities.

Answer: B

Explanation:

A LAN administrator should not have programming responsibilities but may have end-user responsibilities. The LAN administrator may report to the director of the IPF or, in a decentralized operation, to the end-user manager. In small organizations, the LAN administrator also may be responsible for security administration over the LAN.
