Answer: A,B
Explanation:
Explanation/Reference:
SOA Software's Policy Manager and Service Manager combine to form a comprehensive closed-loop SOA Governance solution.
Closed loop means:
* Defining and managing actionable policies in a governance solution at design-time
* Enforcing these policies via deep integration with a management solution at run-time
* Auditing that these policies are being enforced
* Using industry standards (WS-Policy, WS-MEX) where appropriate for information exchange Closed loop infrastructure enables demand and Value Management
* Collect performance, usage and exception statistics at run-time
* Track these statistics via the governance solution
* Use live, audited information to drive value-based decisions about the effectiveness of different services and organizations
* Provide developers with up to the minute information about a service in runtime to inform their decisions about which services to use
* Manage supply and demand to ensure maximum efficiency and benefit from SOA The products share a common registry and metadata repository to ensure seamless integration and offer active governance. Closed-loop governance will:
* Ensure defined policies are enforced
 When you define a policy for a service you have to KNOW categorically that it is being enforced
 Generate audit trails for run-time and design-time policy compliance
* Measure the real-world value of SOA
 Not just theoretical value
 How many applications are using each service, and how much are they using it
 NOT how many applications have asked to use a certain capacity of each service
* Manage, monitor and control relationships between consumers and providers
 Enforced contracts
 Capacity planning Change management
The diagram below shows the relationships between SOA governance, security and management, demonstrating how SOA Policy Management forms a closed loop of policy, metrics, and audit.
