NEW QUESTION: 1

A user is publishing custom metrics to CloudWatch. Which of the below mentioned statements will help the user understand the functionality better?

- A. The user can use the CloudWatch Import tool
- B. The user can view as well as upload data using the console, CLI and APIs
- C. If the user is uploading the custom data, the user must supply the namespace, timezone, and metric name as part of the command
- D. The user should be able to see the data in the console after around 15 minutes

Answer: D

Explanation:

AWS CloudWatch supports the custom metrics. The user can always capture the custom data and upload the data to CloudWatch using CLI or APIs. The user has to always include the namespace as a part of the request. However, the other parameters are optional. If the user has uploaded data using CLI, he can view it as a graph inside the console. The data will take around 2 minutes to upload but can be viewed only after around 15 minutes.

NEW QUESTION: 2

When will the primary processor core dump run in case of a switchover?

- A. before switchover
- B. never takes place
- C. during switchover
- D. periodically
- E. after switchover

Answer: E

Explanation:

In networking devices with redundant processors, the Post-Switchover Core Dump feature uses better software communication techniques between redundant processors to allow the switchover to occur before dumping core information. Not having to wait for dump operations effectively decreases the switchover time between processors. The newly active primary processor runs the core dump operation after switchover
