NEW QUESTION: 3
While performing database backup to tape via the media manager interface, you notice that tape streaming is not happening because RMAN is not sending data blocks fast enough to the tape drive.
Which two actions would you take for tape streaming to happen during the backup?
A. LARGE_POOL.
B. Configure the channel to adjust the tape buffer size by using the 3LKSIZE option.
C. Configure the channel to increase capacity with the rate parameter.
D. Configure large_pool, if not done already. Alternatively, you can increase the size of

E. Configure the channel to increase maxopenfiles.
F. Configure backup optimization.
G. Configure a backup policy by using incremental backups.
Answer: B,E
Explanation:
Explanation
Allocation of Tape Buffers If you back up to or restore from an SBT device, then by default the database allocates four buffers for each channel for the tape writers. The size of the tape I/O buffers is platform-dependent. You can change this value with the PARMS and BLKSIZE parameters of the ALLOCATE CHANNEL or CONFIGURE CHANNEL command. You can improve backup performance by adjusting the level of multiplexing, which is number of input files simultaneously read and then written into the same RMAN backup piece. The level of multiplexing is the minimum of the MAXOPENFILES setting on the channel and the number of input files placed in each backup set. The following table makes recommendations for adjusting the level of multiplexing.
