Remote Procedure Call (RPC) is a protocol that one program can use to request a service from a program located in another computer in a network. Within which OSI/ISO layer is RPC implemented?

- A. Data link layer
- B. Transport layer
- C. Network layer
- D. Session layer

Answer: D

Explanation:

Session layer, which establishes, maintains and manages sessions and synchronization of data flow. Session layer protocols control application-to-application communications, which is what an RPC call is.

The following answers are incorrect:

Transport layer: The Transport layer handles computer-to-computer communications, rather than application-to-application communications like RPC.

Data link Layer: The Data Link layer protocols can be divided into either Logical Link Control (LLC) or Media Access Control (MAC) sublayers.

Protocols like SLIP, PPP, RARP

and L2TP are at this layer. An application-to-application protocol like RPC would not be addressed at this layer.

Network layer: The Network Layer is mostly concerned with routing and addressing of information, not application-to-application communication calls such as an RPC call.

The following reference(s) were/was used to create this question:

The Remote Procedure Call (RPC) protocol is implemented at the Session layer, which establishes, maintains and manages sessions as well as synchronization of the data flow.

Which technology can be used to prevent flooding of IPv6 multicast traffic on a switch?

- A. MLD filtering
- B. MLD snooping
- C. IGMP filtering
- D. IGMP snooping

Answer: B

Explanation:

MLD snooping allows the switch to examine MLD packets and make forwarding decisions based on their content.

You can configure the switch to use MLD snooping in subnets that receive MLD queries from either MLD or the MLD snooping querier. MLD snooping constrains IPv6 multicast traffic at Layer 2 by configuring Layer 2 LAN ports dynamically to forward IPv6 multicast traffic only to those ports that want to receive it.
