NEW QUESTION: 2

Which configuration on a switch would be unsuccessful in preventing a DHCP starvation attack?

- A. Source Guard
- B. Rate Limiting
- C. Port security
- D. DHCP snooping

Answer: B

Explanation:

Other Catalyst switch features, such as IP source guard, can provide additional defense against attacks such as DHCP starvation and IP spoofing. Similar to DHCP snooping, IP source guard is enabled on untrusted Layer 2 ports. All IP traffic is initially blocked, except for DHCP packets captured by the DHCP snooping process. Once a client receives a valid IP address from the DHCP server, a PACL is applied to the port. This restricts the client IP traffic to those source IP addresses configured in the binding. Any other IP traffic with a source address other than the addresses in the binding is filtered.
