- A. Cookie Consistency
- B. Buffer Overflow
- C. Cross-site Scripting
- D. Start URL

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3

You create a cloud-hosted SharePoint app. You must make the app available in the SharePoint Store for customers to install on their host webs. You need to keep the style and navigation of the app the same as the host web of the app after it is installed by any customer.

What should you do?

- A. Add a reference to SP.UI.Controls.js on the host web. Pass the AppUrl parameter to the host web. Apply branding to the host web.
- B. Add a reference to the SP.UI.Controls.js file located in the new /_layouts/15 directory. Pass the HostUrl parameter to the start page of the app. Use the Chrome control in JavaScript.
- C. Use a Chrome control to find the differences in the styles between the host web and the app. Resolve all of the differences by using JavaScript.
- D. Copy the CSS file from the app to the host web. Run the Chrome control to convert the CSS file to the host web format. Apply the styles contained in the CSS file to the host web.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Microsoft allows developers to import a very basic version of the SharePoint 2013 chrome into their apps without having to manually create matching HTML controls. The functionality for this can be found in the SP.UI.Controls.js file located in the new /_layouts/15 directory. To use the chrome control, first add a reference to SP.UI.Controls.js (make sure you've already loaded the requisite JQuery files and other dependencies), then add an empty  to your page markup at or near the top of the page.
